About Cathy's Beaks & Snouts

Cathy Fall is a public school teacher turned farmer caring for pigs, turkeys, chickens, goats and cows on her farm in Prineville, Oregon. A Central Oregonian through and through, Cathy started raising animals as a side project because she wanted to provide meat for her family. She wanted to know where her meat came from and knew she could raise healthy, happy, animals so she dove right in. As she started sharing her product more and more with friends and family Cathy decided to take the next step and start selling it. You can buy in bulk from Cathy or sign up for monthly "fun" boxes of meat. She also provides an "egg punch card" so you don't have to scramble to find change each time you get her eggs.

"My motto is taste the love."

Why Farm?

"It's important to me because I want to provide a product from healthy animals who get to live a life with dignity. We get to choose how our animals live and you can taste the love!"

Words of wisdom?

"The most important thing is to make sure you have the right facilities before you get animals. You have to make sure you can provide them with the proper care."
